EUROPEAN DICTATORS WEIGH FUTURE SET-UP

Duce, Schuschnigg Discuss Future; Alliance Seen If Italy Resigns.

VENICE, June 5.—(AP)—The dictators of Italy and Austria talked over today what they would do if Italy quits the League of Nations because of sanctions.

Immediately after being closeted for two hours with Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, of Austria, Premier Mussolini returned to Rome. He will review a huge military parade Sunday.

If Italy leaves the League, a reliable source indicated, it Duce would try to form a new European front, bringing Germany into an accord with Italy and Austria.

Schuschnigg is understood to have asked if Duce what his own and Austria's status would be in case of an Italo-German alliance. Thus far Austria has sternly combatted with nazism, with the aid of Duce, Austria's "protector."

In Strong Position. Mussolini, it was reported, assured the Austrian leader that Italy is as strong in Europe from a military standpoint as she was before the war in Ethiopia began.

Schuschnigg started back for Vienna tonight. His trip here had been officially described as one for his "health."

Mussolini, well-informed circles said, is prepared for war or peace as clouds of distrust and rivalry hang over Europe and the Mediterranean. He would like a period of peace to develop his new empire, they said, but he is ready for war to defend it.

With Great Britain's relations continue difficult. He has made an informal move at London to clarify Italo-British relations before the assembly of the League of Nations meets (June 30) on the Italo-Ethiopian question. This move, however, apparently failed.

Break Held Probable. With regard to France, recent declarations by Leon Blum, the new premier, lead to the belief in Italian circles a definite break between the European democratic and autocratic nations is most probable.

Believing the attitude of the new French government will give rise to many preoccupations, military authorities ordered new precautions to be taken on the French frontier.

The test of the recent Italo-Albanian accord discloses Rome succeeded in getting entire economic and financial control over the little neighbor, and particularly, Italy secures the improvement of the important naval base of Durazzo.

50,000 Fruit Flies Bred In Study of Heredity

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 5.—(AP)—Fifty thousands fruit flies, producing 30 successive generations per year, have virtually replaced mice and guinea pigs in the zoological laboratories at the University of Rochester in science's perennial quest for information about the factors that govern heredity.

Dwelling placidly in milk bottles in the Chester Dewey building on the men's campus, the flies, under the watchful eye of Dr. Curt Stern, assistant professor of zoology, breed and multiply, producing a generation every 10 days and providing invaluable data on variations through inheritance.

Take a Pleasure Drive Tomorrow, But Remember It Is Day of Death

These are the days of death. Those ominous words should be remembered by every Atlantian and Georgian who starts out today or tomorrow on a bit of week-end-driving.

Saturday and Sunday. The two days out of the week when workers may enjoy rest and pleasure, when families are brought together on visits. The two days when the whole country looks forward to a holiday.

And the two days of the week when death rides fastest, swiftest and most frequently.

Figures Reveal Tragedy. That is a way of putting the fact collected by The Constitution Safety Council on the days of the weeks when fatal automobile accidents are most prevalent.

Saturday accounts for 19 per cent of the week's deaths from careless driving. Last year 6,880 lives were snuffed out on Saturdays because of lack of necessary practice of safety.

And Sunday, the day of rest and relaxation, accounted for 20.6 per cent of the total auto accident deaths, demanding nearly 7,500 lives in payment for recklessness.

Insanity is another name for careless driving. With the horrible examples set by the 38,100 crash deaths last year and the 36,000 similar "murders and suicides" the year before, nothing short of an insidious type of insanity could lead drivers to continue the practices which brought death to so many.

Be wise. Drive carefully. Enjoy your week-end of rest and pleasure and live to tell about it.

Cut Down Speed. Boast on Monday morning that you didn't break a single traffic rule in the city and didn't drive more than 30 miles an hour on the open highway. Motorists who boast of that instead of how much they got out of the old bus on some death-ridden highway or how they "got by" with breaking traffic rules are drivers who can keep on driving without bitter remorse.

A grand jury inquiry of Black Legion activity in Oakland county, where a citizens committee has charged several officials were involved with the secret terrorists, will open next Wednesday.

Whether any action will be taken against David C. Pierce, prosecutor of Oakland county (Pontiac), who announced he had attended meetings of a club found to be affiliated with the Black Legion, will be determined at the next week's Attorney General David H. Crowley said today. He planned to confer with Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, who said at Lansing.

Pierce took part in Black Legion activities in Oakland county and it was proven before me in a hearing. I would remove him from office," said Crowley.

HOARE IS REINSTATED IN BALDWIN'S CABINET

New Minister Faces Task of Liquidating Mediterranean Forces.

LONDON, June 5.—(AP)—Great Britain called back into its cabinet tonight Sir Samuel Hoare, scapegoat of the much-maligned plan to end the Ethiopian war by giving Benito Mussolini only part of Ethiopia.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin openly defied critics and made the well-known Sir Samuel first lord of the admiralty. He succeeded Viscount Mottist, who for some time has desired to retire.

The new minister, who boldly and unapologetically faced a hostile house of commons in mid-December and defended his part in the Anglo-French peace plan, first will face the task of liquidating British-Italian fleet facilities in the Mediterranean.

Sir Samuel came back to the cabinet even as Emperor Haile Selassie, the African king without a country, received Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and thanked him for Great Britain's efforts to stem Italian aggression.

Sir Samuel resigned from the post of foreign secretary last December to save Prime Minister Baldwin from further embarrassment because of the Anglo-French plan to stop the war.

Of greater importance even than the Mediterranean question will be another job for Sir Samuel—restoration of the British navy to its pre-armament position in six months, when the Washington and London naval treaties expire, he will have a free hand on this task.

OREGONIAN IS NAMED JUNIOR CHAMBER HEAD

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 5.—(AP)—Walter E. Holman, of Portland, Ore., the choice of the nominating committee, was elected today as president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Employer Changes Plea, Asks Topsy-Driver Term

Sixty days ago John Flemister, negro, stood before Judge Jesse M. Wood in Fulton criminal court and with him stood his employer, W. J. Stoddard, dry cleaning company owner. The negro was charged with drunken driving.

"Go easy on him, if you can judge," said Stoddard. "He is a good boy." Judge Wood fined John Flemister $25, the minimum.

Yesterday John Flemister and Stoddard again stood before the criminal court judge. Flemister was again charged with drunken driving.

"Six months straight," Judge Wood obliged. "I am glad to see some one who agrees with me."

John Flemister will not endanger the lives of human beings by operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated for that period of time, at least.

15 SALARY BUYERS SUED BY ATLANTAN

Unlawful Interest Collections Alleged; $500 Is Sought From Each.

Suits against 15 Atlanta salary buyers were filed yesterday in Fulton superior court by Moving Bedford, seeking $500 from each on the allegations that the companies used their salary-buying licenses as a cloak for lending money at 240 per cent a year.

Bedford, through his attorneys, Sidney Barnes and Eldon Haldane, alleged that "one, John Doe" and others borrowed the sum of $10 for two weeks from each of the defendants, and were charged $1 interest.

Each defendant has deposited a $500 bond as a salary buyer with the city, the petitioner set forth, and he claimed that amount as a penalty for their being "derelict" in their duty in that their salary-buying businesses were used to cover up lending money at unlawful rates.

Named as defendants were the Independent Finance Company, D. O. Chestnut, Union Investment Company, Royal Investment Company, Inc., Standard Investment Company, Ed Bryant Company, W. G. Chestnut, National Finance Company, C. W. Skinner, P. H. Mell, G. H. Herbst and R. D. Wright, the Archer Investment Company and the Ward Investment Company. Lee Brooks was named as plaintiff in the cases against the Ward and Archer companies.

He is a fellow in the Royal Historical Society, member of the American Historical Association and Phi Beta Kappa. He has been editor-in-chief since 1921 of the Dictionary of American Biography, last volume of which will be published this summer. He was graduated from Wesleyan University in 1903 and received his D. D. degree from Wesleyan in 1914. He studied at Boston University's School of Theology and also at Wesleyan University. He was ordained to the Methodist ministry in 1905, and has been book editor of the Methodist Episcopal church since 1928.

Bishop Kern, who will receive the honorary degree of doctor of law, was graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1902. He was ordained to the Methodist ministry in 1900, was professor in the school of theology, Southern Methodist University, 1915-26, and Dean, 1920-26. He has been Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, since 1930.

University Assessor.

In his annual report to the board of trustees, President Cox revealed that Emory University's gross assets have increased five-fold since 1915. Whereas the original value of buildings and endowment was only $2,000,000, the current value of the university is more than $11,000,000, Dr. Cox pointed out.

The president's report showed an increase in enrollment and volumes in the university library. In 1915 the number of students in the university was less than 600. In 1936 the figure is 1,805. The number of volumes in the university library in 1915 was slightly less than 25,000, the latest check-up shows 135,823.

Report of George H. Mew, treasurer of Emory University, showed an income of $940,257 and an expenditure of $934,773 for all divisions of the university, including Emory University hospital, during the year, 1935-36. Special gifts received during the year from educational foundations, alumni and other friends amounted to $87,587.97.

Investment Income Increase.

President Cox revealed that income from investments of the university showed an increase of 1935 and again this year. "But," he added, "it is improbable that we shall ever again enjoy the high average yield which we had prior to 1931."

"Only by a substantial addition to our capital funds can we hope to provide for the revenue necessary to restore salaries and departmental budgets to their former status and to provide for the expansion which is so urgently needed."

Dr. Cox cited the growing fame of Emory's intramural athletic system and the university's reputation in debating, which led to the debate council's being invited to present the advantages of intramural athletics in a debate over the network of the National Broadcasting Company.

Discussing plans for Emory's centennial celebration, Dr. Cox said that there are two phases to the program as conceived by the committee: first, the events to be held on the campus in observance of the 100th anniversary

VIOLENCE AGAIN FLARES IN BIRMINGHAM STRIKE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 5.—(UP)—Violence flared sporadically in the Birmingham mine field today as 2,000 striking workers prepared to submit a peace proposal to the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company.

BUTTS MAN GIVES PLATFORM VIEWS

Dr. O. B. Howell Outlines
Plans in Tentative Governorship Offer.

Dr. O. B. Howell, of Jackson, chairman of the Butts county board of commissioners, in a radio talk last night outlined what he said should be the platform of the next governor of Georgia and said he would run on it if there proved a sufficient demand. He said if the people wanted another candidate to run on the platform he would supply the candidate.

Dr. Howell was strongly opposed by Governor Talmadge two years ago but was re-elected despite the opposition. In turn he opposed Talmadge in his county but Talmadge carried the county.

In the platform he outlined last night he would provide the following:

The building of nothing but asphalt roads, using cotton in making them up. He held this to be the best kind of roads for Georgia.

The building of all roads by the counties, the money and engineering supervision being furnished by the state highway department.

The building of a free state hospital to treat those who are unable to pay for hospital care.

The payment of old age pensions by the state.

The providing of free school books for the school pupils of the state.

Dr. Howell also presented full cooperation with the Roosevelt recovery program.

The property was bought from the National Bondholders Corporations at an unannounced figure, but it was understood the purchase price was in excess of the tax assessment of $23,750.

The Northwest hotel-apartment is a two-story red brick structure containing 32 rooms with bath. It occupies a lot 100x100 feet between Peachtree and West Peachtree streets. G. W. BIG REVENUE MEASURE
APPROVED BY SENATE

a coalition of republicans and democrats would filibuster the conference report.

Thirteen Democrats Say Nay.
Thirty-six democrats, one progressive and one republican voted for the measure tonight while nine democrats deserted the administration to vote with 15 republicans and the two senate farmer-laborites against the bill.

A clear indication administration leaders would make a fight in conference to bring the final revenue bill even more in line with Mr. Roosevelt's desire came from Majority Leader Joe T. Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, shortly before the vote. Commenting on the corporate substitute tax proposal offered by Senators Hugo Black, democrat, Alabama, and Robert M. La Follette, progressive, Wisconsin, embracing graduated levies on undistributed profits as urged by the President and withdrawn at his request to speed passage of the measure, Robinson said:

"I am impressed by the arguments made for this amendment and am in sympathy with its objectives. It more clearly conforms with the President's viewpoint than the senate provision and I know that he looks upon it with favor." Roosevelt has rejected the approved compromise.

Conferees' Powers.
Robinson then pointed out that conferees would have a "wide latitude" to discuss revision in both measures and with this assurance Black and La Follette withdrew their amendment. It would have exempted corporations with annual income of $15,000 and less from the undistributed corporate profits tax; maintained the present 12-12 to 15 per cent corporate income tax; exempted the first $20,000 of income retained from the profits levy and imposed undistributed earnings levies ranging to 30 per cent on all over 40 per cent of profits undistributed.

There were indications the amendment had moderate support in the senate as La Follette made an impassioned two-hour plea for its adoption as essential to remedy inequities in the present tax laws.

As finally approved by the senate, the tax bill's provisions and treasury estimates of their yield:

An increase in corporate income tax rates from 12-12 to 15 per cent to 15-12 to 18 per cent, $215,000,000.
A 1 per cent flat tax on undistributed corporate profits, $217,000,000.
Normal 4 per cent tax on dividends in the hands of stockholders, $90,000,000.

Revision in present law to encourage increased liquidation of corporations contemplating such action, $33,000,000.
A 22 per cent on foreign corporations doing business in America, $4,000,000.

A 1 per cent increase in surtaxes on incomes ranging from $6,000 to $50,000, $50,000,000.

An 80 per cent "windfall" tax on unpaid or refunded AAA processing taxes, $82,000,000.

Taxes on certain vegetable oils and fats, $10,000,000.

Closing loopholes in present law concerning accumulation of unreasonable corporate reserves, $40,000,000.

Revised methods of taxing the sale of oil leases, $10,000,000.

Reject Treasury Estimates.
Treasury experts estimated the yield from these levies at $751,000,000. Senate finance committee members, however, rejected the treasury estimates and used those of congressional tax experts which showed that an additional $75,000,000 should be added to the potential revenue.

From the corporate profits tax, bringing the total to $826,000,000.

President Roosevelt had asked for $820,000,000 in additional revenue to finance the soldier bonus and farm programs and $517,000,000 in additional temporary revenue to be raised over a period of two or three years to reimburse the treasury for losses suffered by the supreme court's invalidation of AAA.

The house bill is $334,000,000 short of the chief executive's demand and the senate measure $304,000,000.

The house ways and means committee admitted bluntly that its measure was short of the revenue it demanded and recommended that the question of raising additional revenue be left to the next congress. The senate finance committee's report merely said that its bill would raise $268,000,000 more than the house measure and a sufficient amount of money to meet both the permanent and temporary revenue needs for the fiscal year.

Senate Now Clean.
The tax measure has been before congress continuously since Mr. Roosevelt called for new revenue on March 8. It was passed by the house on April 29.

Senate passage of the bill cleared the major legislative slate of both houses. Adjournment of congress is expected to follow within a few days on the revenue measure and the deficiency bill, carrying the $1,425,000,000 relief appropriation, during the week of June 15. The house will reconvene Monday and recess until June 15. The senate will work on private calendar bills tomorrow and recess until the 16th.

Conferees are expected to be named on the tax bill Monday.

Senators Angry.
Numerous minor amendments were defeated after lengthy, tiring arguments in the senate. The delay in reaching a final vote brought short tempers and frayed nerves to the surface.

At one point, Senator Key Pittman, democrat, Nevada, fighting for a revision which would have enabled corporations to revalue their capital investment every two years for purposes of taxation, said he was "fed up" with the senate's attitude.

The amendment was defeated by voice vote after Senator James Coussens, republican, Michigan, defended the tax experts and accused Pittman of representing special interests.

Are You Easily Excited?
There are two general types of people. One is the "sensitive" type that never gets excited very much about anything. Then, there is the sensitive type that is easily upset or excited, and suffers from high nerve tension, which is just another name for nervous pains such as headache and neuralgia.

If you are the latter type—if you are unusually busy day, or worried, or emotion causes a nervous headache, you will find Capidine just made to suit your needs. Two teaspoonfuls of Capidine in a little water will quickly soothe the tension, relieve the headache, and bring welcome relaxation. Capidine is gentle and contains no narcotics. Try it today. If you don't prefer it to anything else, your money will be cheerfully refunded, 60c, 30c, 10c sizes.—(adv.)

A proposal by Senator Alva Adams, democrat, Colorado, to exempt from taxation the portion of a corporation's income which is expended on plant machinery, factory improvements, payment of bona fide indebtedness and for replacement of plant equipment destroyed by fire, floods or other catastrophes, was defeated.

An amendment by Senator Henrik Shipstead, republican, Minnesota, to change the federal law to permit states to tax national banks as they now tax state banks was defeated.

The amendment was preceded by an argument in which Senator Elmer Benson, farmer-laborer, Minnesota, and Senator Lewis Schwellenbach, democrat, Washington, argued in favor of greater state taxation of federal banks.

Senator Carter Glass, democrat, Virginia, opposing the amendment, said a letter from Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. opposing the change was unfair to banks and dangerous.

"That shows how little the secretary knows about the principles of taxation and of economics," Schwellenbach said.

Otto Appeals for Restoration
Of Hapsburgs to Austrian Throne

PARIS, June 5.—(AP)—The Archduke Otto was reported in Switzerland near the Austrian border tonight awaiting the result of his appeal for the restoration of the Hapsburg throne, as a walter of guesses swelled along the diplomatic fronts.

Little Entente diplomats said the archduke, whose appeal to Austrians was made public in Vienna today, was expected to return to Austria in a matter of days.

The Austrian legation insisted he was still in his Belgium exile, while French officials announced the Little Entente would be supported by France.

French officials were awaiting a report from the minister in Vienna, and said France will uphold its Rumanian, Yugoslavian and Czechoslovakian allies in "whatever action" they decided upon in the event Otto should return against their opposition.

Officials here saw the hand of Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starheim in Otto's appeal which was made in the form of a letter. They expressed the belief the ousted viceroy was seeking to create difficulties for Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's government in the hope of regaining power for himself.

Reports of an agreement between Premier Mussolini and Schuschnigg for the restoration of the Hapsburgs were discounted by officials. In Vienna, Baron von Wismar, legitimized leader, made public a letter which Otto wrote from Belgium.

"It is high time for decisive action," it read. "I am ready at any hour to return to the Fatherland and give Austria its old unity, power and happiness."

Chancellor officials in Vienna said the appeal was "a serious matter of restoration of the archduke Otto as 'ridiculous.'" Another pointed out, however, that Mussolini and Schuschnigg must discuss the question of a plebiscite to determine the people's desire in the matter.

Slow Extinction of English People
Threatened by Birth Rate Decline

CHICAGO, June 5.—(AP)—The English people are threatened with extinction by a "continuing fall" in the nation's birth rate, the London correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association reported today.

The population will be reduced anywhere from one-half to one-tenth of its present size in the next 100 years, the correspondent said, and the prevailing trend continues to be a "complete disappearance" of the English race.

Schools are already being closed, he added, because there are no children to attend them.

The decline in the birth rate—steady for the last 60 years—is rapidly making a nation of old people, the correspondent explained, because "improved sanitation has prolonged life" meanwhile.

Although figures show that England's population had increased by 12.5 per cent per thousand annually from the beginning of the 19th century, the world's population is now declining in Europe—and then plunged to 4.4 per cent from 1924 to 1934, the journal's correspondent asserted.

Frank Chapa, Mexican representative, will speak at San Antonio, and over a dozen speakers will address the Houston, Tex., General San Antonio, the Lone Star republic's first president, will speak. Secretary Hopewell will speak at Dallas will conclude the program.

F. D. R. Plans Visit.
President Roosevelt will visit Houston, San Antonio, and Dallas, and spend the day at Fort Worth.

In 1932, Texas legislature submitted a constitutional amendment to Texas authorizing the mammoth birthday party and overwhelming approval resulted.

Exhibitors with his high bid of nearly $100,000, was awarded the site of the exposition. The city of Dallas voted bonds totaling $3,500,000 to construct the exposition grounds.

The state legislature appropriated $3,000,000 for the entire state, with $1,200,000 allotted to the exposition grounds. The state legislature appropriated $3,000,000 for the entire state, with $1,200,000 allotted to the exposition grounds.

Exhibitors budgeted nearly $12,000,000 and concessionaires added another $5,000,000—bringing the total to more than $25,000,000.

KREUGER CLAIMS ARE AGREED UPON
Agreement To Open Way for Sale of European Assets of Match Firm.

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Four years of world-wide negotiations by creditors' committees ended today in approval by a referee in bankruptcy of five agreements to clear claims and counter-claims of major companies in the Ivar Kreuger match group.

The agreements, made between the Kreuger and Toll company trustee, Edward S. Greenbaum, and the International Match Corporation, and between the trustee and the Swedish Match Company, also will open the way toward sale of European assets of International Match to the Swedish company for $8,500,000.

In the long negotiations, aided by an international committee headed by Norman Davis, who has been called "ambassador-at-large," inquiries were made of assets of about 160 subsidiary companies in 50 countries.

One of the agreements—which Greenbaum said would go far toward untangling financial difficulties which followed the suicide of Ivar Kreuger in 1932—provides that Kreuger and Toll shall withdraw a claim against International Match for $54,282,418.

Another provides that the proceeds of 350,000 capital shares of Diamond Match Company, owned by Kreuger and Toll, shall be divided equally among the three major companies.

PARCHED WEEK-END
PREDICTED FOR CITY

were Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. and Representatives Paul Brown, of Elberton, E. M. Owen, of Griffin, and M. C. Tarrar, of Dalton.

They discussed various means of providing relief, including liberalization of soil conservation rules to increase acreage which may be withdrawn from cultivation of tobacco and cotton—the crop worst affected—and other soil depleting crops. Such a policy would increase farmers' benefits.

Representative Hampton P. Fulmer, of Orangeburg, S. C., who presided at the conference, joined Representatives Allard H. Gasque, of Florence, S. C., James P. Richards, of Lancaster, S. C., in predicting the department would provide adequate relief as quickly as possible.

Representative Thomas G. Burch, of Martinsville, Va., acting upon advice from John R. Hutcheson, Virginia extension director, joined the group in yesterday's conference.

He told Secretary Wallace Virginia was suffering the "worst drought since 1930, with planting at least 35 per cent of normal."

Members of the delegation agreed that first the department must have a general idea of conditions.

"The problem is scattered," said Gasque. "Some sections are worse hit than others."

Commenting on the request of Governor Johnston, of South Carolina, that farmers pray for rain, Richards said:

"Undoubtedly that will help." The secretary said the department was urged to increase from 25 per cent to 60 per cent the acreage to be placed under the soil conservation act.

Russell and the Georgia congressmen said no smaller percentage would relieve the distress in their state.

"Even that will not solve the problem in some of the worst cases," Russell said. "Some farmers are so badly stricken help from the resettlement administration will be necessary."

94 Degrees Predicted.
Meanwhile 94-degree weather was promised Atlanta today by Chief Forecaster George W. Mindling, of the local weather bureau. Temperature in Atlanta yesterday afternoon reached 93 degrees. This morning the mercury was scheduled to start at 70 degrees while yesterday it began the day at 68.

Atlanta's only prospect for relief, so far as the weather bureau could determine, was an area of low barometric pressure in west Texas and Arizona.

"It is so far away and so undeveloped," said Mindling, "that I see little encouragement in it. There is always a chance of some low pressure areas in west Texas moving over toward east Texas and Arkansas, drawing damp winds in from the Gulf of Mexico and the Great Lakes."

These movements take three or four days to develop, however, and even if this slim ray of hope brought any relief to Atlanta it would be several days before it arrived."

Southwide Survey.
The official weekly weather and crop bulletin issued yesterday by the weather bureau at Washington depicted conditions in the south most critically affected southern states as follows:

Virginia—Richmond: Temperatures slightly subnormal; little rainfall. Drought seriously damaged crops; some ground too dry and hard for plowing and planting. Meadows and pastures searing; wheat filling prematurely; tobacco making progress in south.

North Carolina—Raleigh: Drought seriously damaged crops; some ground too dry and hard for plowing and planting. Meadows and pastures searing; wheat filling prematurely; tobacco making progress in south.

South Carolina—Columbia: Dry, except moderate rains on south coast. Wheat and oat harvest in north fair to good. Cotton in south mostly irregular stands; condition deteriorating, except fair in some southern localities. Some cotton replanting, but soil dry with chapping in south. Drought serious; all crops late. Stands not good and much remains to be planted.

Georgia Conditions.
About normal; cooler; close; dry in north and middle where almost no rain last seven weeks; heavy rain in southwest favorable for cotton and corn. No rain except light showers in north with germination failure some areas and much land not planted; less than one-fourth stands in some central areas. Wheat and corn harvest well advanced; some threshed. Truck crops and potatoes near failure many places, but tomatoes, beans and cabbage good. Some weak rice harvest. Drought serious; all crops late. Stands not good and much remains to be planted.

Tennessee—Nashville: Drought serious in most of state. Setting tobacco; some plants dying in beds. Pastures drying; hay short, except limited areas. Progress of corn poor; wheat in south. Winter wheat ripening, but severely by drought. Progress of cotton fair; condition fairly good. Potatoes poor to fair.

Atlanta was assured yesterday by meteorologists at the Chattahoochee River pumping station that the river is at its normal stage and "there is plenty of water left."

MARYLAND FARMERS GET "MILLION-DOLLAR RAIN"
PRINCES ANNE, Md., June 5.—(AP)—Their hopes revived by rain after nearly two months of drought, Somerset county farmers looked out today upon water-soaked fields that for weeks were dusty, parched and dry.

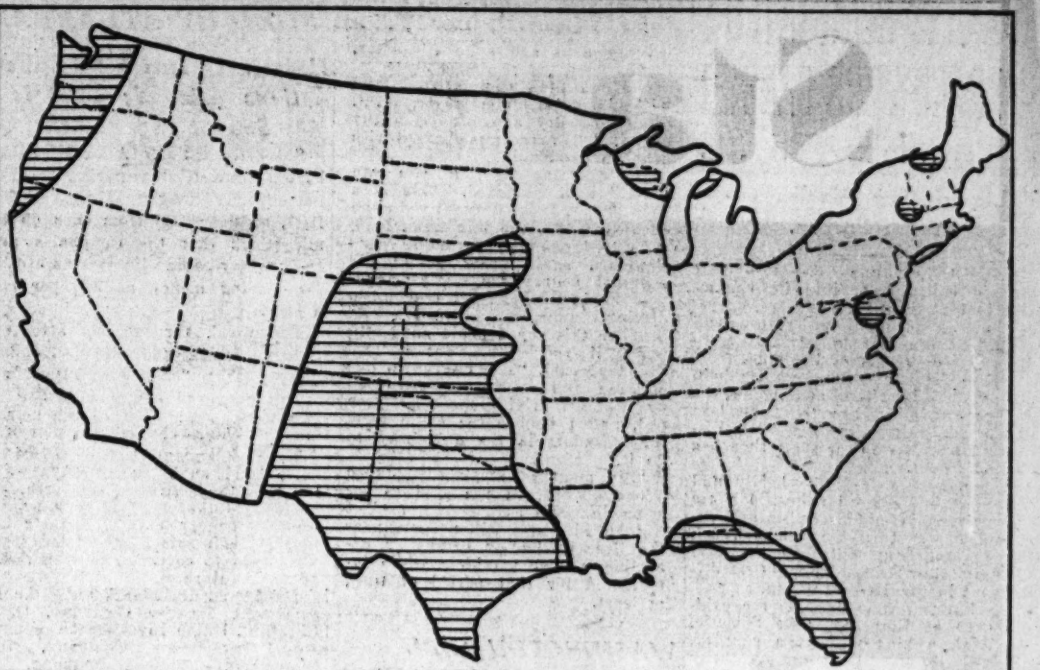

Heavy rains, the first drenching precipitation since April 11, fell yesterday. One observer described the rain as a "million-dollar rain" that meant the end of "eight weeks of worry and despair."

Gloom had settled deeper over this section Wednesday when thunderstorms swept other parts of the state but passed this area by for the eighth successive week.

The drenching torrents that saturated the earth Wednesday meant the potato and bean crops would be saved and that farmers now could plow soil for corn, the important staple crop of the fall.

The extended dry weather already had ruined the early tomatoes and strawberry crops. Only watermelon and County Agent C. Z. Keller expressed

Rains Favored Small Area of Country During May

Here is a visual diagram of the rainfall in the United States during May, prepared by a Constitution artist from the weather bureau's rain map, published yesterday. The shaded areas show where the rainfall was above normal and the blank areas show where rainfall was below normal. The large shaded section extending from Texas northward tells the peculiar story of how that area—known as the dust storm region—got more than its share of rain. As a result, the drought center of the nation moved to the south-eastern states from Virginia through Georgia to Mississippi.

NEW YORKERS FEEL
RESULT OF DROUGHT

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—New Yorkers felt the results of the country's "potato drought" today as prices here shot upward following reports of a potato shortage, particularly in Florida, South Carolina, and in Maine, known as the "potato state."

Benjamin Balish, potato dealer, said efforts to locate potatoes on the Pacific coast brought answer that the navy was bidding for many carloads for Honolulu and that the Panama Pacific railroad had practically cleaned out the San Francisco market yesterday.

It was reported the new potato crop from Florida and South Carolina has been exhausted and that the crops of North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Texas, Louisiana and California were smaller than in the past few years.

The average retail price for five pounds of old potatoes in grocery stores today was over 27 cents. Last year bags of 15 pounds were offered for less.

in the public eye as have members of the council and also the task of selling them on the necessity for "sacrificing their businesses for the civic weal of the municipality."

Among those considered were the following:

Thomas C. Dickson, former president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association; W. D. Hoffman, former member of the board of education and retired businessman; and George Campbell, of the Atlanta Title & Trust Company.

Although the meeting was reported to have been for another purpose other than to select a "successor to Key," other business was transacted hurriedly and then politics arose as a paramount consideration.

The group is determined to attempt to center on one man to run against Key, if that is possible, and is pledged to exert its efforts to keep a candidate out of the race.

Crystallization of the anti-Key sentiment of the entire community behind the candidate who is finally centered on will be the project of those who attended the session.

Thus the majority contest may develop into a contest between Key's friends and his enemies.

Key Will Make Race.
Those close to Key yesterday asserted without equivocation that he will be a qualified candidate to succeed himself before the entry lists close.

He has persistently declined to discuss his future, but he has been quoted in the past as saying that he would be better at the present time than in the past several years.

Another thing, which adds credence to the reports that he will seek the mayoralty nomination again, is that he enjoys a fight. If a chosen candidate comes out against him, it is certain that he will resist the imputations which must necessarily follow such a course. That can mean but one thing, his friends aver—he will run.

Roy E. Callaway, candidate for alderman from the new fourth ward, composed of the old seventh and eighth wards, yesterday asserted unequivocally that he has not entered any lineup and does not propose to do so. He said he has conferred with Mayor Key and has decided to remain out of the race.

Other Sevilla towns were in the grip of a general strike. Fascists and communists clashed in scattered sections and a number were injured. The socialist newspaper La Region, died today from wounds received yesterday. Several alleged fascists were arrested and lodged with the police.

ped to the theoretical gold point 10 days ago and has remained there since, permitting American banks to buy at a profit.

The Bank of France gold reserve as of May 29 was $3,753,407,325, a reduction of $27,908,000 in less than a week. There was wide speculation over possibility of early devaluation.

After a two-hour meeting, the cabinet announced that "the government has decided to do its utmost to conclude a rapid and happy solution of the strikes."

The cabinet approved Blum's ministerial declaration which he will read to the chamber today.

A police station, stationed at the city gate, prevented strikers from obstructing incoming carts loaded with fruit and vegetables. Seven hundred Paris butchers struck. With cleavers in hand, they stood guard around the slaughter houses. The Paris meat supply was cut in half.

For State Comptroller

PARKER TO MAKE RACE ON COMPTROLLER JOB

Parker from running for congress, is understood to be ready to get behind the Statesboro man for comptroller.

Reports of the Saturday night conference reaching here said Carreker was more than willing for Parker to make the race in his stead but that he was given every assurance he "will be taken care of" by the Governor in the event Talmadge has any job to put out when his term as comptroller expires. Carreker has never made a state-wide race and it was generally understood he had no particular desire to combat Harrison.

There also has been some talk that J. B. Deuel, who was appointed treasurer of Carteret, this year was suspended, will not make the race against Hamilton but that the Talmadge group will support Milton L. Fleetwood, of Carteret. This has been chiefly talk, however, as present plans call for Daniel to make the race. They may be changed, of course, but it is believed that Daniel is campaigning and Fleetwood a not, which is the best sign possible.

were rushed to danger zones where street was growing.

The gendarmes patrolled the waterfront, and authorities exerted efforts to prevent the spread of strikes in the communist centers of Liege and Charleroi.

Inward traffic in Antwerp harbor was suspended, and no strikers joined the dock workers in walkouts.

The gendarmes patrolled the waterfront, and authorities exerted efforts to prevent the spread of strikes in the communist centers of Liege and Charleroi.

Bus and trolley workers joined the dock workers in sympathy. Walkouts of the dock hands held up three American steamers in port. Freight movements were completely paralyzed. Strikers' bicycle patrols scoured through the waterfront districts to prevent handling of goods. It was estimated 25,000 were on strike and walkouts were spreading rapidly.

SPAIN IS SHAKEN BY REVOLT RUMOR

MADRID, June 5.—(AP)—Strikes, fighting and rumors of a monarchist revolt shook a harassed leftist government tonight in Spain.

Despite the government's outlawing of strikes as a labor weapon, industry in many parts of the country remained paralyzed.

Added to labor troubles was a new problem—a report arms for royal revolutionists were being smuggled into Spain from France.

Alfonso Mallol, director of public security, and three platoons of police hurried to Pamplona, where the report originated, to search for arms. Search began, and one man, Lieutenant Colonel Alejandro Utrilla, prominent in monarchist activities, was arrested in Pamplona.

The government of Premier Santiago Casares ordered workers centers closed in Leiria in Sevilla province, and arrested members of the strike committee.

The government was reported seriously contemplating assumption of control over all Spanish railways to bring an end to recurring interruptions of service caused by strikes and other labor difficulties.

Approximately 30,000 workers joined a strike movement when coal miners in the Asturias basin laid down their tools and demanded back pay of 12,000,000 pesetas ($2,400,000), plus bonuses.

Eleven hundred miners still were employed in a coal mine near Antolin in Pennarroya province, where they have been since May 26, protesting against working conditions.

Other Sevilla towns were in the grip of a general strike. Fascists and communists clashed in scattered sections and a number were injured. The socialist newspaper La Region, died today from wounds received yesterday. Several alleged fascists were arrested and lodged with the police.

Two persons were injured in a Madrid café when a bomb exploded.

Ghezzi and Mangrum Tie for Open Golf Lead With 140's

BREAK O'DAY!
By Ralph McGill

In peering over the lists in the National Open tournament where the going for the first two rounds was very hot indeed, I was struck between the eyes with the fact that only two foreign competitors are in there.

Our English cousins, who spend a great deal of their time bemoaning the fact that Americans are crude enough to play to win and not for the mere sake of sport, are not present.

They stay away because they have no good golfers and they cannot play our courses. Their theory of sport for sport's sake falls rather flat.

But the Japanese are in there. My friends Seisui Chin, of Tokyo, and Toichiro Toda, of Kobe, are hanging in there doing their very best. At the conclusion of yesterday's round Seisui Chin, known as "Chick," had a two-round total of 147 as against a 153 for Toda, known as "Torchy." Toda generally is regarded as the better golfer.

The two Japanese boys have been in America for months playing all through the winter tournaments and remaining for the Open.

They were in Atlanta and at the Thomasville Open. It was at the Thomasville Open that I heard a South Georgia colored girl waitress at the club and the two Japanese, with their very badly broken English, trying to order a meal. It was quite an entertaining few minutes as the Georgia drawl and the Japanese sibilants clashed.

They won no tournaments. But now and then they were in the money. But they smiled all the time and they studied the courses and the greens and Chin made a thousand kodak pictures of groups and greens.

At any rate France and England and the other nations have given up. But the Japanese keep hanging in there. They will be producing real golfers within the next few years.

Meanwhile they keep on trying. One must admire that.

THE POWER OF A NAME.
There is, despite the earlier edict of Mr. Shakespeare to the contrary, quite a lot in a name.

The football player who has a flashy nickname, gets more headlines thereby. As does a baseball player. Babe Ruth, for all his home runs, would not have been as picturesque had he been called by a less appealing name. It fitted his huge frame exactly.

The two Japanese players would not have been as popular as they were—and are—had not Bob Harlow, manager of the winter tours, invented some nicknames for them.

Harlow, a former newspaperman and press agent, knew the papers would become discouraged with Seisui Chin and Toichiro Toda. So he pulled "Chick" and "Torchy" out of his bag of nicknames and the American golf fans developed an affection for them they would not have had minus those names. It was the one touch needed to give their natural good natures and personalities a chance to become appreciated.

At any rate, you may search the open lists in vain for a Scot, a Frenchman or an Englishman. But the Japanese are there. Trying.

CRIPPLED, YET STRONGER.

It should be apparent to the boys about the league that the only way they may hope to compete with the Atlanta baseball club is to strengthen their own outfits.

Despite the fact the club is minus its two regular outfielders, Hamel and Hutcheson, it still is leading the league and likely will continue to do so.

The recent slump was caused by the inability of rival clubs to offer any opposition. The Crackers became imbued with the idea they could win without half trying.

The recent slump meant nothing at all. The Crackers still are the best team in the league. And will be until the rivals strengthen to cope with them.

Our brave lads will come home in first place. It may be that injuries will cause them to slip out of that spot, but that remains to be seen. The crippled Crackers seem to be the best team.

JUST A GAG? WELL, WELL, WELL!
Peck Hamel will be interested in an item in the southern press.

One of the boys declared the appendicitis operation was just a gag to use preceding Hamel's reinstatement. If it is a gag, then Peck Hamel, minus his appendix, would appreciate not being told about it. It hurts awfully to laugh. And might break a stitch or so.

WHY TO ENGLAND?
It is something of a puzzle to the tennis layman when he considers the fact the badly beaten lawn tennis team was sent to the English championships at Wimbledon.

Obviously a great deal of money will be needed to ship the boys and their rackets over there and to feed them during their stay.

Sending Budge is a great idea. But just why Wilmer Allison and Gene Mako were sent is a puzzle. Bryan Grant richly deserved the trip, but the tennis association never intends to play him in the cup matches. Unless, of course, they wait until he is an old man with whiskers. They then may shove him in there and when he loses, declare they knew it all along.

The tennis association should have used the money in developing young players and not spent it freighting the worst cup team the nation ever had to England for some more defeats.

GENE COOK MADE PRO IN ALABAMA

Gene Cook, the first Georgia amateur golfer to win the state crown twice in succession and a former professional at the James L. Key, municipal course, has been named professional at the Anniston Country Club, it was learned Friday.

Cook has always liked Alabama and was a member of the Woodward Golf and Country Club in Birmingham and a leading amateur player in Alabama for many years before returning to Atlanta.

After leaving Atlanta, Cook went to Anderson, S. C., where he was a professional for several years.

Atlantan Is Second In Olympic Trials

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 5.—(AP) Lieutenant Charles Leonard, who was graduated from the military academy a year ago, took the lead over Cadet Philip Gage, of Atlanta, in the first day's competition for the Olympic modern pentathlon team today. Lieutenant Leonard scored the low total of six points, based on placings among 20 competitors, while Gage scored 7-12 points.

Leonard was timed in 4:35.6 in the 300 meter swim this morning, the opening event. He placed second behind Gage, who splashed over the course in 4:19.4.

BELMONT EVENT DRAWS BREVITY AND GRANVILLE

Bold Venture Only Important Absentee in 68th Running Today.

By Orlo Robertson.
NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Ten three-year-old aces of the turf return to the wars at Belmont Park tomorrow in the 68th running of America's oldest race—the Belmont Stakes. Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky Derby, will be the only important absentee.

Morton L. Schwartz's star bowed a tendon 10 days ago, throwing the race for the championship wide open. J. E. Widener's Brevity and William Woodward's Granville, the "hard luck" horses of the year, have taken over the spotlight for the trying mile and a half test.

If all 10 face the starter at about 3:30 p. m. (modern standard time) the classic will have a gross value of close to $45,000 with upwards of $30,000 going to the winner. The remainder will be divided between the owners of the next three horses and the nominations of the first three to finish.

Brevity and Granville belong to the field. Brevity took a head decision to Bold Venture in the Kentucky Derby and Granville dropped the Pimlico Peckabaw by an even closer margin. The Widener colt also was runner-up in the withers mile, while Granville finished second in both the Wood Memorial and the Suburban, losing the former to the Westley stable's Teufel, a stablemate which also has been entered for tomorrow's race.

In the pre-race odds both were quoted at 7 to 5 with the bookmakers taking into consideration that Granville will have as running mates Teufel and Woodward's Isolator, the colt which ran a read heat with Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Corundum earlier in the week.

Of the others, C. V. Whitney's Red Rain, a stretch-running son of Pennant, is giving the best chance to turn back the favorites. He failed to show much in the Withers, but his trainer, Bill Brennan, is confident the big chestnut will show to a better advantage a longer distance. He was held at 6-to-1 in the pre-race figuring.

The remainder of the field is composed of outsiders—Corundum, W. M. Jefford's Jean Barlow, Price Edgerly's Hollywood, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Memory Book and John Hay Whitney's Mr. Bones.

MAN EXPECTS TO SIGN PLAYER BEFORE MONDAY

Cracker President Dickering With Major Clubs for Outfielder.

By Jack Troy.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 5.—President Earl Mann kept the wires and telephone lines hot today as he opened negotiations with at least two big league clubs for another outfielder. Mann confidently expects to land another outfielder before the club returns home Monday. He has two good players in mind and is carefully checking over their records with the view of taking the one he figures would do the Cracker's most good.

Mann has in mind obtaining an outfielder on a 24-hour recall basis. The plan is to use the outfielder until Big Joe Hootcheson is ready to play. Hootcheson will be ready by the first of July, it is figured.

ON ACTIVE LIST.
Cy Grant, the old Cornell fox hunter, was placed on the active list today. He will be kept around in the event of injuries to any of the regulars.

Hank Deberry, Giant scout, was here for tonight's game. Asked if he were interested in any Cracker, Deberry replied, "I'm interested in any good ball player."

To which a Nashville sports writer replied, "Well, you are not interested in any Cracker then, Hank."

SPIRITS EXCELLENT.
Arriving here today, one found the Cracker's players in excellent spirits. They were anxious to know if the fans were working about them. They felt the championship to Chattanooga keenly and have vowed to get even when they return home for the Chattanooga series Monday.

Yates Plays Exhibition Today

By Roy White.

Charlie Yates, Western Amateur champion, and Charlie Edwards will play Pete and Tommy Barnes at 2 o'clock this afternoon on the West End course in an exhibition, featuring an all-day sports program at the West End Club.

Following the golf match, a fish fry will be served at the club, with members of the club and their friends invited and welcome. Reservations for the fish fry and a dance which closes the program, will be $1 and 50 cents for ladies.

Semi-final matches in the annual West End Club championship tournament are scheduled to be played today, with the finals for next Sunday. In the upper bracket of the championship flight, Marvin Smith meets Red O'Neal, as Curt Bessill plays Goot Cooper in the lower bracket.

Paul Lundquist plays M. L. Hayes today or Sunday for the second flight title.

A. Lynn, the club president, and E. T. Mize, the club professional, will be in charge of the day's program.

EAST LAKERS.
East Lake golfers will complete all second-round matches today in the annual championship tournament.

Several matches already have been completed, but a majority of the players have waited until today to finish. The tournament is being played over the No. 2 course and play in the championship flight is from scratch, with handicaps applying in all other flights.

Another day's play in the championship flight will be over either course. The limits for today's play have been set between 70 and 80, so the entries may choose their own handicaps, accordingly.

Special one-day blind bogey have been scheduled for Druid Hills and Capital City members this afternoon.

A two-day blind bogey will open this afternoon on the Andy Park to continue through Sunday afternoon.

JONES LEADS.
Weyman Jones, with 63, one stroke under par, continues to hold the lead in the qualifying round for the Lloyd Cleaners tournament on the Chandler Park course. The qualifying will close Sunday afternoon, giving every amateur golfer in the city two more days in which to enter.

There is no limit to the entries and as many flights will be made as necessary to take care of every entry. And there is no entry fee, the only charges being the regular green fees.

Wallace Lindquist, the Chandler Park professional, is in charge of the tournament, which is open to every amateur golfer in the city, regardless of his club affiliation.

A merry scramble looms in the championship flight for already 14 players have scores of 70 or better and Teddy Hayes, P. C. Wade, E. T. Barnes and Hoy Reeves are only one stroke away from Jones. Three others, Charlie Omer, Roland Williams and Pete Wilson, are tied with 65's, two strokes away from the leader.

Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Griffin Win.

Mrs. C. E. Williamson and Mrs. George Griffin Jr. were winners yesterday morning in a one-day medal play tournament on the Druid Hills course. Mrs. Williamson won low gross prize with a 98, while Mrs. Griffin won low net with an 80.

NEW UMPIRE.

Ahhh!---Some More Quintuplets

Ike Farmer, former Georgia Tech athlete, is shown above with a five-legged frog captured on a frog hunt near Marietta last Thursday night. Farmer was photographed with his unique find at The Constitution studio yesterday. The frog may have thought himself one hop ahead of his pals, but he wasn't.

Ike Farmer Captures Dionne-Legged Frog

Extra Limb Is Genuine One; Ex-Jacket's Accident Which Involved Cow Recalled.

By Ralph McGill.

Ike Farmer, who once chased the elusive pigskin and caught the pitched horseshoe for the Georgia Tech Jackets, is a man of the soil, as might be expected from his name.

He constantly is turning up with bucolic adventures of an interesting nature. His last one is the capture, single-handedly, of a five-legged frog.

The frog may be seen in the photograph above. The extra leg is a genuine one. Mr. Farmer is not a nature faker.

The frog was captured after a thrilling hand-to-hand battle in a lake near Marietta where Ike Farmer and some friends went on a frog hunt Thursday night.

This frog was one of two gipped at once and captured practically unharmed, the pal getting the gig.

The frog's name is Dionne, after the Dionne quintuplets, the frog having quintuplet legs. It seems to be perfectly happy in Mr. Farmer's possession.

It was just a year or so ago that Mr. Farmer became involved in an accident which involved a cow. The cow was on a country road. So was Mr. Farmer and a friend, Mr. Farmer and his friend were in one of those cut-down collegiate automobiles.

The owner of the cow was all for having the sheriff in on the case. But Mr. Farmer hurried in to his coach, Mr. W. A. Alexander, and he provided the costs which Mr. Farmer repaid in small sums. Small sums are all the sums students have.

This was all right. But when Mr. Farmer went back the next day to pay the damages the farmer made him bury the cow. It was a large cow. And they must be buried deep.

And now comes the Dionne-legged frog. There is no telling what Mr. Farmer's next bucolic adventure will be. But it will be interesting.

Mr. Farmer was accompanied on the trip by Sam Fincher, also a former Tech athlete, and by Jack Payne.

PITTSBURGH, June 5.—(AP)—Miss Jane Forrester, of suburban Wilkensburg, will be married tomorrow to Watts Gunn, Atlanta, Ga., golfer. The ceremony will be conducted by the Rev. George Taylor Jr., of the First Presbyterian church, Wilkensburg.

Miss Forrester is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Alexander Forrester.

RETAINS TITLE.

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, former southern champion, retained her women's Long Island Golf Association title today by defeating Sylvia Annenberg, of Great Neck, New York state titleholder, 5 and 4, in the 36-hole final match at the Wheatley Hills Club.

It was reported he sustained head and arm injuries, but they are not believed to be serious. Walker is due to go to Chicago shortly, it was stated, but it is not believed his injuries will prevent his participation in the Olympic tryouts.

The accident occurred on the Waycross-Brunswick highway when a naval stores truck struck a cow, causing it to ricochet and strike the automobile in which Walker was riding, overturning the machine. He was later brought here for treatment.

TWO ATLANTANS CLASH IN FINALS OF TENNIS MEET

Bobbitt, Billy Gillespie Play Today for Junior Title.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 5.—(UP) Russell Bobbitt, Atlanta, seeded No. 1, and his fellow townsmen, young Billy Gillespie, seeded No. 4, were left tonight in the finals of the southern junior tennis tournament.

Bobbitt, as he has done in every other match, coasted into the finals this afternoon by defeating Wesley Barnett, Baton Rouge, La., No. 3 seeded player, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2. The Atlantans seemed to take the first set easy but cut down on the final two impressively.

Gillespie, barely 15, defeated his older and larger brother, Campbell Gillespie, 18, seeded No. 6, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, this afternoon.

The match in many respects was the most interesting of the tournament. Constant "brothering" nagging, talking and spite acts were intermingled with good, hard tennis.

Billy and Bobbitt, the favorite, will battle for the title at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The boys' finals also will be played at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

In the quarter-finals of junior play this morning, Bobbitt defeated Billy McGehee, New Orleans, 6-4, 6-0; Barnett defeated Dan Canale, Memphis, and Campbell Gillespie stopped Louis Paquin, Memphis, in a quarter-finals match played yesterday.

Boulware, Morrell In Semi-Finals.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 5.—(AP)—Semi-final matches will be played tomorrow afternoon in the Tennessee valley tennis tournament at the Chattanooga Tennis Club with Roy Marshall, Knoxville, facing Bob Lake, of Birmingham, and Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., battling his hometown competitor, Vernon Marcum.

In the doubles match Boulware and Tony Morrell, Georgia Tech's southern intercollegiate doubles titlists, will meet John Thomas and Paul Hunt, Chattanooga, and Lefty Bryan and Mark Tarpley will oppose Hendrix and Marcum.

A combination of brisk breeze and burning sun kept the grass green and made it difficult to make pitch shots stick to the putting surfaces satisfactory.

GREEN SPURNS DRIVE FOR ONE STEEL UNION

Refuses Aid After Amalgamated Accepts Lewis' Leadership.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—William Green, American Federation of Labor president and leader of the craft unionists, said today the executive council of the federation had been "thwarted" by the decision of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers to join an effort to organize the steel workers into one big industrial union.

Despite the fact that the ten unions now belonging to the group headed by John L. Lewis are affiliated with the federation, Green declared the organizing campaign would be carried on by Lewis' committee for industrial organization, "separate and apart from the American Federation of Labor."

"For obvious reasons," he said, "it will now be impossible to unite and concentrate the full and complete economic, financial and organizing force of the A. F. of L. in an immediate steel organizing campaign drive."

ATLANTA THEATER NEWS

"Private Number" Opens Week's Run at the Fox

Robert Taylor and Loretta Young, two of Hollywood's most popular stars, came to the Fox theater for a week yesterday in "Private Number," a gay and entertaining film.

The film propounds the romantic question, what chance has a millionaire's son and a personal maid?

It gets off to a good start when Taylor, only son of a wealthy family, returns home from college and mistakes Miss Young, his mother's maid, for a house guest.

He refuses to permit her to reveal her identity and the first chance meeting is the start of romance that has its obstacles to overcome, for family objections and other difficulties arise.

The romantic climax comes in a crowded courtroom where Taylor and Miss Young, after being separated, meet again and the answer to whether or not their love can continue is given.

Both Taylor and Miss Young are excellent, and the film is aided greatly by the work of Patsy Kelly, who as one of screenland's better comedienne, Miss Kelly is hilarious as usual.

The film was directed by Roy Del Ruth, who, with a capable hand, has made a color cartoon, musical short and newsreel are also on the bill.

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 5.—(AP)—Urging graduates of the Georgia State College to use their power as women to lead the men of this nation in settling the problems that must be faced in the future, Professor W. The college conferred 48 bachelor of arts degrees and awarded 14 diplomas for junior college work.

At the conclusion of his talk, the college president announced that Miss Brown Hutchinson, Valdosta, and Miss Marion Reid, Hiramville, were named the honor graduates of the class. Their scholastic standings have been the highest of the class during their four years in the college, the announcement said.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 5.—(AP)—John G. Richardson, of Hartwell, clerk of superior court of Hart county, was elected president of the Georgia Peace and County Officers' Association and Albany was selected as the convention city for next year.

Ben T. Watkins, Macon, chief of police, who retired as president, was elected secretary and treasurer.

The vice presidents elected were T. N. Winnett, Macon, and W. R. Knight, Quitman. Jule C. Sipple, Savannah, was chairman of the nominating committee.

Resolutions were adopted for the following: Opposing the 15-mill over-all tax amendment; favoring a state highway patrol and state bureau of identification calling for the fingerprinting of persons passing in pawn shops, and of persons convicted of drunkenness and reckless driving; calling on the legislature to enact a law to require automobile owners to have liability and property insurance and a state license to prevent truck drivers from being permitted to drive trucks more than eight hours without relief.

The political tax reformers will find their sorrow," he said, "that the forces which smiled upon them to carry taxes, will turn upon them tomorrow to levy new taxes to replace them."

He said supporters of the 15-mill plan to reduce the losses can be replaced with a 5-mill tax upon intangibles and other forms of taxation. These taxes, he said, the tax limitation proponents claim would be adopted at a session of the legislature called by the Governor immediately after adoption of the 15-mill amendment.

"The limitation proposal was supported in the last Georgia legislature by a chief executive whose avowed aim was to curtail governmental services," Wright said.

"If it is adopted in November and unless the Governor repudiates the statement he has always taken, he will oppose the enactment of any new taxes."

WRIGHT, June 5.—(AP)—A highway accident near here last night claimed its second victim today.

Wayne Nell Young, 14, died this morning after being taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Creighton Smith, Baxley cattle buyer, was killed in the collision of a motor car and a parked truck, between Leno and Jewett.

Two of the young girl's sisters and one brother were among five persons injured seriously.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

LIMIT WEIGHT LOSS TO 50 POUNDS A YEAR.

The fast reduced pays too much for slenderness. Not only does good disposition and under the strain of too rigorous dieting, but energy may be dangerously depleted. With excessive weight, the tendency—in spite of all warnings—is to overdo on a reducing program. Don't try to break records in reducing. Only this morning an ambitious reducer announced that she had "benefited" by losing 100 pounds through following the column for a little over a year. But she goes on to ask the reason for her decreased energy and a fatigue which is not dispelled by a normal amount of sleep.

This reducer would have benefited far more had she taken two years to remove this amount of excess weight. It takes time to equal such a program and it is never wise to take chances with your health. If you will consult your doctor at intervals he can help you to regulate your weight loss so as to protect your vitality.

Another argument in favor of moderate reducing is that you can more easily keep your weight at normal by extending reducing over a longer period of time.

To keep your health as you improve your figure, follow these reducing speed laws:

For the first three or four months you may safely lose two pounds per week. Even during the first month, when weight loss is rapid, it is easy, no reducer should ever lose more than 10 pounds. Keep your total loss for the first four months within 20 pounds. During the next four months, while moving the more solid fat, the loss should not exceed 15 to 20 pounds, at an approximate rate of one pound per week.

During the last four months, the weekly loss rate should be within one to three-fourths pounds, or a total of eight to ten pounds. Fifty pounds a year should satisfy the most ambitious reducer.

Too rapid a weight loss indicates that your calorie intake is below your reducing requirements, which, in most cases, should never be less than two-thirds of the normal calorie allowance.

In general, reducing calories will range as follows: 1,000 calories, 1,200 calories, and 1,400-1,600 calories. Unless you are under five feet in height, you should not use less than 1,000 calories; the average woman reducer will require around 1,200 calories, and the large-framed woman will take from 1,400 to 1,600 calories daily. The "Pointers-to-Slimness" will help you to calculate the exact number of calories needed.

In the event you lose too rapidly, increase your daily allowance by several hundred calories. It doesn't pay to lose too rapidly.

My Day
By
ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK CITY, Thursday.—Such a time as people have who come to Washington these days! I was about to leave for my train at 7:30 this morning when a rather forlorn looking gentleman walked into my sitting room and said:

"Ambassador Bingham and I got up an hour too early this morning as we still have our watches on New York time."

Knowing how a man dislikes to sit around an hour before breakfast, I hurriedly asked the kitchen to provide for them as soon as possible and left them looking more cheerful.

I talked to a most interesting young man last night, Harold Stark, who is making a survey on the youth situation in various states, and seems to think he is evolving a real plan on which young people may work. Of course, Mrs. Preston Martin is still anxious to see her plan based on her book, "Prohibiting Poverty," tried out in a modified form, using the CCC camps as a basis.

I think there may be a great deal in her idea and perhaps some method may be found by which young people can start their lives on a simple self-supporting basis, reducing their needs to a minimum and only increasing them as the years go on. It will, however, require education.

An amusing thing happened just as I was leaving the train this morning—an elderly couple went down the aisle and a minute later the woman came back and said to me:

"You are Mrs. Roosevelt, aren't you? I have been married 56 years to an ardent republican, but I am still a democrat and I think your husband is just about perfect."

She left me and a man in the seat in front of me turned around and said:

"I am an ardent republican, but I, too, am deeply interested in your husband."

I got home to find my son, James, and his wife waiting for me on my balcony and we had a pleasant lunch there together. This is their sixth wedding anniversary and, as I look back over the years, they have been packed with experiences for both of them. Now time flies!

Miss Jenkins and Mr. Miles Wed At First Baptist Church

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Jenkins and Ernest Miles was solemnized last evening at the First Baptist church with Dr. Ellis A. Fuller officiating in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride was artistically decorated with palms, and the altar was banked with greenery and clusters of Easter lilies. Three separate groups of seven-branched candelabra, holding lighted candles, were placed on the altar with clusters of Easter lilies and tiny wedding bells, formed an effective background for the wedding party, which stood upon a raised platform. Family pews designated by clusters of Easter lilies tied with white ribbons.

Miss Eugenia Jenkins was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids included Misses Ethel Green, Janie Laverette, Myrtle Sheridan, Janette Lane, Mrs. Paul Brown and Mrs. Walter Sheffield. They were dressed alike in models of peach mouseline de soie over tulle with orchid bows designed in love knots. The bride veil was held to her hair by a comb of orange blossoms. It was fashioned with a long train extending beyond the train of her gown and a finger-ring section studied with orange blossoms. She wore white satin sandals and carried an arm bouquet of white roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. George W. Jenkins, mother of the bride, was lovely in a model of orchid lace, and her flowers were a shoulder spray of yellow roses and valley lilies. After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins entertained at a reception at their home on Fourteenth street. The house was artistically decorated with garden flowers in pastel shades and greenery. The mantel was banked with a profusion of spring flowers in soft shades. The dining room table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by six single silver candelabra adorned with clusters of valley lilies. Punch was served upon the terrace from a bowl reposing upon a mound of spring flowers and greenery. Receiving with the hosts were the bride and groom and members of the wedding party.

The bride's book was kept by Mrs. William Stiglitz.

SAN FRANCISCO

By LEBBEUS MITCHELL

WHAT WAS GONE BEFORE: Jack Burley, financial support of San Francisco's Tivoli Opera Company, is intrigued by the pretty and gifted singer, Mary Blake, who is a performer at Blackie Norton's Paradise Music Hall on the Barbary Coast. Blackie had taken her in and given her a job when, her funds exhausted, she had been driven out of the Tivoli hotel by fire. Mary is grateful to Blackie, and thrilled that he does not want her to leave him, and refuses Jack Burley's offer of the role of Marguerite in "Faust." NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT V.

"Too bad, Burley," said Blackie, smugly. "I hope I can do you a favor some time."

But Jack Burley would not yet admit defeat. He offered Blackie $5,000 for Mary's contract, then doubled that offer.

"Nothing doing," said Blackie. "You may be going to need the money," said Burley significantly. "I'm doing all right," was Blackie's reply.

"If you change your mind, Miss Blake, and want to come to the Tivoli, Norton told me he would let you go."

"He did!" cried Mary, surprised and grateful, a warm glow in her heart.

"That's right," Blackie assured her, gloating over Burley. "You made your own choice."

Touched by her employer's generosity, Mary turned to Burley with a smiling shrug that gave finality to her decision to remain at the Paradise. "When Burley had gone, she turned a soft glance upon Blackie.

"It was nice of you—about my contract."

"Aw—forget it!" He patted her shoulder; the look in his eyes caressed her, and she was a little frightened and flustered. "You've heard all about the Tivoli opera house from a lot of mugs that never get around anywhere. I'm going to tip you off about a few facts about the Paradise."

He led her into his office. Its walls were covered with photographs, posters and trophies of San Francisco's underworld life. In a corner were three large silver loving cups on pedestals. He told her they were trophies offered every year by Freddy Duane and the rest of "Erico's" wine agents at an event called "The Chicken Ball."

"They hold a competition at the ball and give a prize of $10,000 in gold to the proprietor of the joint that puts on the most artistic show. And you want to know the joint that's won it three times running—the Paradise!" He slapped her arm with the back of his hand. She was touched by his evident pride in the Paradise and the prizes it had won. "Thirty thousand dollars that Chickens' ball has sent home to Blackie! For 'artistic achievement!' That's what they said every time they slipped me the trophy."

Mary looked up at him, his pride was so like a boy's. "Why, it's wonderful," she said.

"Well, ain't I telling you! . . . And I got a few plans for the future." He took her arm and led her to a door across the room. "Just take a gander at this!" He threw open the door of the coat closet on the back of which was tacked a poster—a "three-sheet" lithographed portrait of Mary in tights with an enormous headdress, knee-high gilt boots, and a gaudy, embroidered cape thrown over one shoulder. Lettering on the glaring poster proclaimed: "Beginnings Feb. 15th—Blackie Norton's Paradise—Engagement Extraordinary—Mary Blake, the Colorado Nightingale."

Admiring the poster himself, Blackie did not notice the look of amazed disgust on Mary's face. "Look at it! Great, eh?"

In mingled emotions of fright, anguish and astonishment, yet touched withal, she merely nodded, unable to trust herself to words.

"I've been working on this for weeks," he said, looking down at her with pride and love. "Just to show you my appreciation. Clever ideas, putting you in lights. I wanted it to be a surprise, so I got Tris to pose for the figure. Then they slapped your head on top of it. I'll have it on every billboard in San Francisco! You'll be the queen of the Barbary Coast for Blackie!" She looked up at him, greatly moved, unable to speak. "I'm stuck on you. I like to look into those big lamps of yours." Still not trusting herself to speak, she let her glance fall. He pursued: "Crazy about your hair. If you ever want to cut any of it, I'll put some in my watch." His arm started to go about her, but she turned quickly and went to the window, striving to pull herself together. He watched her a moment, then went to her, spoke, quizzically: "What's the matter, kid?"

Let's turn around here, he said, and he turned her around. He turned her face towards him, put his hand under her chin, forcing her to look up at him. "What is it, Mary?"

"Blackie!" The cry was almost a confession, a confession that Blackie took for a tender one.

"Well, what do you know?" he laughed happily. "It's about time!" He drew her into his arms and kissed her lips passionately. She relaxed completely.

"Happy, kid?" He was happy, and appealing, in his conceit.

Frightened and helpless, Mary at length looked up at him. "Yes."

"Now you're talking!" He turned her face up for another look into her eyes. "I'm hungry. What do you say we go up to my place and have some chop suey? I'll have Joe cook us something."

Mistaking her shock and fright for modest hesitancy, he put his arm about her and led her out into the auditorium where the professor was playing ragtime to which Mat and Tris were dancing. Babe and two of the girls were looking on, Mary strove to regain some degree of composure.

"That's all right, Tris!" Blackie called. "You can knock off. Everybody's going to drink champagne on me! Babe dig up some of that Pomero Sec for the boys and girls."

Babe, his glance at his boss's arm still about Mary, was delighted at Blackie's luck. "Shall I order you some breakfast?"

"No, thanks. Mary and I are going upstairs for some chop suey."

The professor had stopped playing. The look on Mary's face held a different meaning for him than the one that Blackie had read into it.

"Mary!" he called from the stage. "I have a couple of new numbers I'd like to have you try out."

"Not this morning, Professor!" laughed Blackie. "Mat, you go tell Joe—No, never mind; I'll tell him myself. You stay right here, honey. I won't be a minute!"

That offer of help from the Professor had given her a trace more of composure; she could look at Blackie without flinching. But when his back was turned, she looked after him, terrified.

When Blackie returned from giving the order to Joe Lee, Mary was not where he had left her.

"Where's Mary?" Blackie called to those on the stage.

Mat answered. "Guess she went up to set the table."

"Thanks," Blackie all but barged into a cleaning woman, a glass of champagne in her hand.

He was half way up the stairs when Father Mullin's voice hailed him.

"Oh, hello 'Tim.' Blackie's voice was impatient.

"You did?" Blackie turned, stepped down a tread or two.

"I met her on the street and put her in a cab. She said for me to tell you, 'Hello, Tim.' Blackie's voice was impatient.

"What's that?" Blackie's face expressed his consternation.

"Didn't you say she could go?"

"Yes, but—"

"Well, she's gone to the Tivoli," Father Mullin went up the stairs and put a hand on his friend's shoulder. "I'm glad you did it, Blackie. This is no place for her."

"You think not, eh?" said Blackie, angry at the reflection on his "joint."

"Of course not," said the priest, "and you know it. Didn't you?" He looked Blackie squarely in the eyes.

"Do you think she'd better off at the Tivoli—in the hands of Jack Burley?" asked Blackie, resentment for a moment overcoming his fondness for his childhood friend.

"She'll be safe with Burley, Blackie. You see, she doesn't love him."

Blackie looked keenly at Father Mullin for a moment, then gave vent to an ironic laugh.

"You like chop suey, don't you, Tim?"

"Sure," replied the priest, mystified at the turn in their talk.

"Well, come on upstairs! We're going to have some." There was irony in Blackie's smile; the joke was on him, yet he was bitter and resentful at the turn the affair had taken.

Mary's preparation for the role of Marguerite in "Faust" was brief and arduous. Thanks to her training and the condition in which she had kept her voice, Blackie pronounced her ready for her debut after several weeks of study and rehearsal under his direction.

And now the great occasion had arrived, and she was anxious about the result. Was she overconfident? Were Mr. Burley and Signor Belmont too enthusiastic? She had never sung in opera; was too young to have learned the traditions of her art, the nuances that skillful operatic performers can summon instantly to their aid. Little wonder she was nervous, hectic and excited—the coming ordeal was sufficient excuse, but over all that was her preoccupation with Blackie Norton, how had he taken her desertion of him? Would he come to hear her sing? Did he love her?—but, yes! She knew he did, though he had not said a word about marriage. Away from him and his influence, her own emotions had calmed down; she had come to admit to herself that she loved Blackie.

But it was not Blackie that was speaking of love to her in her dressing room filled with flowers—flowers that Jack Burley had sent, and that had been followed by Burley in person. He was large and handsome, beaming his 40 years. He dismissed Madame Albani, Mary's singing teacher, and stood looking down warmly at her.

"Mother's out there tonight, Mary," he said, his tone giving much importance to that simple statement. "She came all the way back from New York to be present tonight. Guess she got tired of reading about you in my letters." At her upward glance of surprise, he took her hands. "In another two hours you'll be famous. Before you've got the whole town at your feet I want to put in my bid. I love you, dear. I want to marry you."

"Why, does that surprise you so much?" I've always wanted you, from the first moment I set eyes on you, but I didn't realize then how I wanted you."

AINT
WORD

THERE IS NO SUCH
WORD AS 'AINT'

Many people who use good English in other respects have fallen into the habit of saying "ain't." They reply: "Ain't it so?" "Ain't that?" "You ain't kidding?" There is no such word in the English language, and this word, which is a vulgarism, should be stamped out of our speech. To use it is to brand ourselves as mentally careless, and uncouth. It would bar us from many opportunities, for one's speech is an important advertisement of himself.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

Legend says that Missouri people are hard to convince, and Missouri has been called the "Show Me" state, but Mr. R. M. of St. Louis, writes that he's almost sure he saw an airship of some kind from another planet, three and a half years ago.

"On the afternoon of December 8, 1932," he says, "I was driving east when I saw something in the sky. It was blue-white, like an electric arc, and traveling south. As I watched, the light went on and off three times. Then I saw what seemed to be the side of a huge airplane fuselage, but bigger than any airplane we know."

"Still later I saw what looked like a huge red-hot object, about four times the size of the full moon. This disappeared, and then I saw the front end of it go straight up. There seemed to be four windows across the bow of the object. It was going up and away from the earth, but was making a left turn. The last I saw the light was turning northeast."

"My personal opinion is that we were having some visitors from out in space. Several issues of the paper after that date had letters from people who said they had seen a meteor that afternoon. It was also seen up in Iowa. I did not write anything about it at the time because I thought what I saw would sound like a dream."

"I think there are people on other planets who are smarter than we are, and they might find a way to visit our earth. Coming from cold outer space into the air around the earth, may have been too much of a strain on them. If they landed, it was probably in some part of southern Illinois."

It may be that what Mr. R. M. saw was a daylight meteor. Thousands of meteors strike the earth's air in the daytime as well as at night, but usually the sun's light is bright enough to keep them from being seen during the day.

The "four windows" might have been parts of a meteor, or sometimes a large meteor splits into pieces. There may have been a mistake about seeing the object going upward in the excitement of the moment. It may have seemed to be doing that, though it wasn't.

Another possible thing is that the object was an airship, which reflected the sun's rays very brightly. Unless we had far more proof, it would be better to suppose it was an airship of the earth than one from another planet.

The day may come when rockets of some kind will pass between the planets, but that has not come yet—so far as we know.

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—

Unsettled conditions abroad continued a major restraining influence on the bond market today, holding the list within narrow limits and bringing further sharp losses to foreign dollar issues.

Labor disturbances in France and Spain, further pressure against gold bloc currencies and prospects of another outbreak of Sino-Japanese hostilities, were among other developments abroad which caused uneasiness and attendant liquidation of foreign dollar bonds.

Heaviest losses included Japanese 6 1/2s, off 1/8 at 94 1/2; the 5 1/2s, off 3/4 at 80 5/8; and the 4 1/2s, off 1/2 at 78 1/2. ## TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN No. 138

Despite Old Timer's pleas, Kali Bwana stood firm in the face of the advancing bull. "Please run," he begged once more. "You did not run when I was in danger," he answered calmly. He started to reply, but the bull was never spoken, for then the ape charged!

The great beast swooped down on them like some mighty Goliath, but Old Timer was no David. The man struck with his club. The ape bristled and snarled angrily. Brave Kali Bwana rushed in and pushed the attacker with her slender staff. Her efforts were futile.

The big ape grasped the man's stick, tore it from his hand and flung it aside. His other paw sent Kali Bwana spinning with a blow that might have killed her if the man had not broken its force by seizing the stick. Now these two were helpless before the foe.

Then the ape picked up Old Timer as if he had been a rag doll and rolled off toward the jungle. When the girl staggered to her feet, still dazed by the effect of the blow, she was alone. The man and beast had disappeared. She called aloud, but there was no reply!

THE CONSTITUTION, ATLANTA, GA., SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1936.

Despite Old Timer's pleas, Kali Bwana stood firm in the face of the advancing bull. "Please run," he begged once more. "You did not run when I was in danger," he answered calmly. He started to reply, but the bull was never spoken, for then the ape charged!

The great beast swooped down on them like some mighty Goliath, but Old Timer was no David. The man struck with his club. The ape bristled and snarled angrily. Brave Kali Bwana rushed in and pushed the attacker with her slender staff. Her efforts were futile.

The big ape grasped the man's stick, tore it from his hand and flung it aside. His other paw sent Kali Bwana spinning with a blow that might have killed her if the man had not broken its force by seizing the stick. Now these two were helpless before the foe.

Then the ape picked up Old Timer as if he had been a rag doll and rolled off toward the jungle. When the girl staggered to her feet, still dazed by the effect of the blow, she was alone. The man and beast had disappeared. She called aloud, but there was no reply!

FARM TENANCY PLANK URGED ON DEMOCRATS

18 Prominent Southerners
Would Have U. S. Enable
Farmers to Own Land.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 5.—(AP) A conference of 18 southerners, 14 of whom are members of southern university faculties, today endorsed a proposed farm tenancy plank for the 1936 democratic platform to be adopted at the coming national convention.

Such a plank was proposed to President Roosevelt recently by six Iowa congressmen who told the President the 1935 census showed 49.6 per cent of tenant operations in their state against 23.8 per cent in 1930.

Charles W. Pipkin, dean of the graduate school and professor of government at Louisiana State University, as spokesman for the Nashville conference, said the group endorsed the position of the Iowa congressmen, whose proposed plank said in part: "The party pledges itself to continue the use of the credit facilities of the federal government for the relief of distressed farm owners. It favors the use of the credit facilities of a sound and constructive legislative program for extending the credit facilities of the federal government to qualified farm tenants to enable them to become farm-house owners."

Besides Pipkin, those endorsing the proposal were Herbert Agar, associate editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal; John D. Wade, Melton H. Bryan and Ed Winfield Parks, of the University of Georgia; Robert Penn Warren and O. Brooks, of S. C.; Richmond C. Allen, of the University of Alabama; James Waller, of Nashville; T. J. Cauley, of Georgia Tech; Henry Clay Evans Jr., of Monticello, Tenn.; Allen Tate and Andrew Lytle, of the University of Tennessee; Memphis, and Frank L. Owsley, John Crowe Ransom, Lyle H. Lanier, Donald Davidson and George Marion O'Donnell, of Vanderbilt University, Nashville.
